What we've been learning recently

Grandparents' Day – Thank you to all grandparents that popped in on Tuesday morning! It was wonderful hearing about their school days compared to now, and sharing treasured memories with their grandchildren.

English – Our William Blake poems are complete. These have been put into our 'Star Writer' books and we will read our poems to Reception/Nursery at some point over the next couple of weeks. We are now reading 'Secrets of a Sun King' by Emma Carroll. We are currently reading the build up of the story and eagerly awaiting more information about the curse.

Maths – We are continuing with our fractions unit. We are adding and subtracting fractions with different denominators – again, times tables are so important to aid them with this mathematical concept, so please keep practicing at home.

Over the next fortnight we will be...

- Working on our use of speech marks and adverbials in English.
- Creating an Egyptian pop-up book using 3 different mechanisms – This is our Design and Technology project for this term.
- In maths we will be subtracting fractions including mixed numbers and 'breaking the whole'.
- Continuing to learn about clothes in French!
